NEW LAWS AFFECT PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Among some thirty-four educational bills which were passed by the last session of the General Assembly and signed by Governor Sproul thus becoming laws, are a number which will be of special interest to Washington county readers, inasmuch as they relate to the schools of the county. They are as follows:

House Bill No. 26 extends the benefits of the Soldiers' Orphan Industrial School to orphans or destitute children of soldiers, sailors or marines of the recent war.

A bill provides for the appointment and payment of the expenses of a delegate from every school district to the State school convention.

A bill amending the section of the school code requiring school districts to pay $4 per day for each day's attendance at the annual school institute.

An amendment requiring children to attend schools in which the common branches are taught in the English language.

An amendment to the school code eliminating the optional medical inspection of and making it mandatory in third and fourth class school districts, including medical inspection of teeth for all pupils. Also an amendment including a course of physical training and ethics and instruction conducive to the spirit of loyalty and devotion to the Stars and National governments.

An act amending sections of the school code, entitling each county and assistant county superintendent a sum not exceeding $500 annually for necessary traveling and other expenses.

An act to provide instruction in citizenship to foreign born residents of Pennsylvania who are not required to attend school, under the joint direction of the Court of Common Pleas of any county and the county superintendent.

Word has been received by his family that George I. Crispin, of California who is serving as clerk in the Central Record office of the American army in France, recently won a tennis tournament, being declared the champion.

MUST MAKE REPORT ON LIQUOR STOCKS

Liquor dealers, it is reported, were notified a few days ago to make returns to the government just how much stock they had in possession when the war-time prohibition went into effect. They not only must account for the stock which they retained for their personal use, but also must make known the amount of liquors which they had left on their hands at that time and which they would place on sale should the war time prohibition act be lifted. This report is to be made by Tuesday of next week and hotel keepers have hopes that within a short time they will be allowed to reopen their places of business until the national prohibition law becomes effective in January.

It is hoped that the President will shortly take action in this matter, as after August 15 but 8,000 American soldiers will remain on the Rhine, Third Division having left for Brest and the First Division is scheduled to follow on August 15. Less than 90,000 American troops remain in France at the present time and with the end of this month it is expected that this number will be reduced by over one half.

ELLSWORTH MAN HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE

A newspaper advertisement for a wife resulted in a charge of violating the Mann act against Jacob Moran of Ellsworth. After a hearing on Thursday before United States Commissioner Roger Knox he was held for the Erie term of Federal court. He was remanded to jail in default of $2,000 bail.

Caroline Paprek, aged 24, of Panama, Ill., read the advertisement and after some correspondence Moran went to Illinois and brought the girl to his home in Ellsworth. He told her after a time, that they could not get married, as he did not like her she alleges.

STEAL TIRE WHILE CAR IS IN MOTION

Thieves have been known to steal tires from automobiles parked along the street or standing along some country road, but the limit has been reached when a brand new automobile can be stolen from an automobile while the car is speeding along a public highway. This happened a few evenings ago when Rev. Father Pawlikiewicz of Donora, with a friend, was on his way from Donora to Monongahela.

The car had turned from the Donora bridge and started up the rather steep grade out of Webster. Several boys were noticed running after the car when it struck the grade and one of them attached themselves to the car. A tire worth $70 was carried at the road. At the top of the grade it was found that the tire had disappeared and two youths were seen making their getaway at the side of the road.

The youths got away from the car owner, but it is said they are known to the car. A tire worth $70 was carried at the road. At the top of the grade it was found that the tire had disappeared and two youths were seen making their getaway at the side of the road.

LOCAL SHRINERS ATTEND THE PICNIC

A party of CharleROI Shriners, composed of Lawrence B. Frye, John Frye, James Stevenson, Carl Wertz, Charles Steel and C. S. McKean motored to Erie, leaving here early Wednesday morning, to attend the Shriners' picnic which was held in that city on Wednesday. The party found it rough going, as it rained very hard during the morning, which made many of the roads hard to negotiate. The local party joined the Pittsburgh Shriners, who left by auto, there being fifty machines in the pilgrimage. CharleROI party returned home at 9 o'clock Thursday evening.

MANY ORGANIZATIONS WILL TAKE PART IN HOME-COMING DAY

HAVE OPENED BRANCH IN CHARLEROI

The Stroud Michael Company which styles itself the "Laun-Dry-Ette" Washer has opened a branch of their Pittsburgh store at 423 Fallowfield avenue. The company operates 18 stores with main offices in Cleveland.

K. OF C. PICNIC AT OLYMPIA PARK

"Come early and stay all day" is the slogan of the committee in charge of the plans for the annual Knights of Columbus outing and reunion, to be held at Olympia park near McKeesport next Wednesday. Joseph A. Butler, general chairman of the gathering in which 21 councils will take part, predicts an attendance equal to the best pre-war figures, and an experienced group of committeemen will be in attendance to cater to the wants and pleasures of their guests. To encourage early attendance, two special prizes will be awarded in an "early attendance" contest for ladies, and the free distribution of souvenirs, novelties, nicknacks, and amusement tickets to children will continue until 1:30. The Liberty bond contest open to all in attendance at the park will close at 5 o'clock.

Eighteen events will comprise the well arranged program of athletics for young and old and both sexes with prizes galore. At 11 a. m. Brad-dock council will play Donora team for a baseball trophy cup, while at 4 o'clock the army and navy team will show how much "pep" the service of Uncle Sam puts into ball players.

ALLENPORT IS FOR THE NEW HOSPITAL

An enthusiastic hospital meeting was held at Allenport on Wednesday evening, at which time it was the unanimous action of the assemblage that no matter where the new hospital should be placed that they would support it. Another meeting is scheduled for this evening at which Dr. Hein-es expects to have many new points in the campaign present. Locally, the organizers and the campaign committee are marking time until word is received from Dr. Martin and Dr. Baldy as to whether they will accept places on the committee to select the site for the building. As soon as word is received from these gentlemen a date will be named on which the inspection trip will be made with a view of selecting the site.

Committee Will Invite All in Local War Chest District

EXPECT A GENERAL RESPONSE

The parade committee of the home-coming celebration, to be held on the 21st inst., met at the borough building Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. A majority of the members of this committee were in attendance and a very enthusiastic session was the result.

One of the first actions of the committee was to begin the compilation of the list of organizations, consisting of fraternal, civic and industrial, all of which will be asked to participate in the demonstration that day. As enumerated last evening the committee made a list of 48 such organizations here in CharleROI, with prospects that this number will be increased by at least half dozen more, while those from the surrounding towns included in the war chest district will swell the total number possibly to 75.

A letter of invitation will be sent to all of these organizations, asking them to participate in the parade. If it should happen that any organization would be missed inadvertently Chairman Tussing wishes it distinctly understood that such organization is expected to be present and take part. The committee will not intentionally miss any organization in extending invitations, but wishes all of the units in the War Chest district to take part.

In the letter which will be mailed to these societies the committee will ask for certain information, as to number of members expected in line, who will be in charge, and whether they will have a band. With this data available the committee will be better enabled to make arrangements for the parade, which according to present indications promises to be one of the largest ever held in the history of the town.

Details of the parade will not be completed until the committee has had a full report from those who expect to take part. This information should be available next week, when the com-munistic action of the assemblage expects to get a line on the number of organizations as well as an approximate number of marchers. There promises to be plenty of bands to furnish the music and if it is found that more will be necessary the music committee will no doubt secure them. All details appear to be working out in a splendid manner and com-miteemen feel encouraged that their efforts will result in a great demonstration for the day selected.

The general committee will meet next Monday evening, and the parade men a date will be named on which the inspection trip will be made with a view of selecting the site.

NATURAL GAS SUPPLY MUST BE CONSERVED

Authorities Making Efforts To Eradicate the Wasteful Use of the Greatest Commodity
in the World

FREE CONSUMERS WORST OFFENDERS

Pittsburgh.—The agitation recently taken up by natural gas men in this district—the center of the industry—has received fresh impetus from an order promulgated by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio, at Columbus, relating to the use of natural gas in any wasteful manner. Men high in the industry say that the people generally have the idea that when they pay for the commodity they can either use or abuse it, but the order made has dispelled this, and for the benefit of the gas-using public several extracts have been made from the report of the proceedings of the meeting on conservation of natural gas held before the Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania, that will not only enlighten them on the subject but also help to start a campaign of conservation in which the people must co-operate with the officials of the several gas companies.

The marketed production of natural gas in the United States amounts to about eight hundred billion cubic feet a year, serving about 10 per cent of the people. This product takes the place of over thirty million tons of coal. It is estimated that the wastage of natural gas is equal to the consumption, and that a conspicuous proportion of this loss results from practices which may readily be eradicated. Owing to the magnitude of the service rendered by natural gas and the significance of the preventable losses taking place in its consumption, the conservation of this product is one of great importance, especially during the coming winter. The report of the commission goes on to give some very startling facts regarding the supply of natural gas in the future, and starts off by saying:

"The natural gas situation has become steadily worse during the last few years. In many parts of the country at the present moment it is critical; in many communities the consequences during the coming winter will be serious. The supply is beginning to run short, and only by the greatest vigilance and care can due service be obtained from the quantity available. The losses in connection with the use of natural gas are greater relatively than those of any other commodity, and many of these losses are subject to immediate improvement through enforcement of proper regulations."

Up to about three years ago the production of natural gas in West Virginia for a number of years had been supporting the decline in the output of such States as Pennsylvania, Indiana and Ohio, and it was because of this so far supply from West Virginia that the seriousness of the falling off in the other three States was not realized by the general public as well as manufacturers and mill owners who used the product in their industrial plants. But when it was announced two years ago that the West Virginia production had fallen off 12 per cent everybody began to take notice, and steps were taken leading to a universal saving of the fuel, and investigations were begun as to whether the fuel was being used in a proper manner. Last winter, when the supply of natural gas failed to measure up to the needs of the users, it was found that 1.9 per cent of the consumers were using 30.7 per cent of the natural gas, and, as a report by the United States Fuel Administration says: "Was due in part to the consumption of natural gas in converted coal furnaces, wholly improper appliance for burning natural gas. Public Utilities Commissions are now prohibiting the use of natural gas in appliances not primarily constructed for such use."

Investigations by the United States Fuel Administration show that the wastage due to leakage in distributing system has been enormous. In many cases, where meters were installed, it was found that the leakage ran as far as 50 per cent of the total. The leakage in consumers' houses is much more than ordinarily appreciated, and in some that were checked it was found that the leakage averaged 19,000 cubic feet of gas per annum for each house. It is said that there are many distributing plants that waste more than one-third of the gas delivered at the gates of the town, and there are many main transmission lines where the percentage of leakage is very high. The Fuel Administration says: "In an extensive investigation of the amount of gas consumed by domestic consumers in West Virginia having free gas service (on account of having gas wells or gas lines on their farms), it was found that the average consumption per free consumer a year was 480,000 cubic feet. This is a waste of at least 350,000 cubic feet for each consumer a year. There are at least 4,400 free consumers in West Virginia, and at this rate of waste this item alone amounts to 1,540,000,000 cubic feet a year."

The following comparison is made showing what the truth of the preceding paragraph means: Average consumption for each free domestic natural gas consumer in West Virginia, 480 M. Average annual consumption for each domestic natural gas consumer in the United States, 100 M. These matters were given due consideration by the United States Fuel Administration, and a careful campaign was mapped out for the purpose of educating gas users to the value of conserving the fuel in their own interests as well as the interests of the producers, and therefore they made and established the following regulation, subject to general or special modification from time to time, and at any time:

"The abuse of natural gas in any wasteful manner is hereby prohibited. It shall be deemed wasteful to burn natural gas by means of flammables or open lights, to burn natural gas for the purpose of outside lighting during daylight hours, to burn natural gas in inefficient appliances; to burn more natural gas than is reasonably necessary for the purpose which it is intended to serve, or to consume natural gas in any other manner which is not reasonably efficient and economical. Licensees are hereby directed to report to the United States Fuel Administration all cases where consumers persist in the wasteful use of natural gas."

The order of the Ohio Commission is an extension during the coming winter of the order for last winter.

Mangroves Destroying Island.

The island of Aldabra, near Madagascar, is being wiped off the map by the action of the mangroves that grow along the foot of the cliff. They eat their way into the rock in all directions, and into the gaps thus formed the waves force their way.

Mender on the Mend.

"I understood you to say the other day that your wife was ill, but I suppose she is better. I saw her this morning sitting by the window sewing," said one man to another. "Quite right!" replied the other. "As you observed today she is on the mend!"

Didn't Like That Kind.

We had tried mush for breakfast and my little girl asked to be helped to some. I, selecting a nice brown place, laid it on her plate, and she said, "Mother, I don't like rusty mush."—Chicago Tribune.

Small Producers of Coal.

Portugal digs less coal than any other European country. Her total product of coal is only 22,000 tons a year. New South Wales digs yearly just twice as much coal as all Spain produces.

Getting Even With the Censor.

"The censor cuts out all the interesting parts of his letters, but he's found a way to get even with him." "What's that?" "He says he's going to quit writing."

Why Called "Clove."

The word "clove" has come down from the French word "clou," which means a nail, because of the resemblance, partly real and partly fanciful, which the dried clove bears to a nail.

Silk-Producing Insects.

The number of species of silk-producing insects is very large, probably more than 200 very few of which are of any practical value to mankind.

Reason for Mirth.

ARM BROKEN WHEN

MACHINE UPSETS

Thomas Allen of Roscoe, while out driving in his auto, met with an accident near the Woods farm, back of Fayette City, Wednesday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock. He was approaching a curve in the roadway and instead of putting on the brake, as he intended gave the machine more gas. It gave a lunge forward and striking the curve, turned completely over twice. Allen had an arm splintered from the wrist to the elbow, while a young lady who was in the car with him was cut about the head and bruised. They were brought back to Fayette City, where they were given medical attention.

STANDARD

SPORT MODEL

A Powerful Car

WHEN you see the new Standard "8" Sport Model with its long, narrow body, its low center of gravity, its long, straight hood which conceals its eight-cylinder, 83 horse-power motor, you get an advance impression of the thrill that awaits you when you let in the clutch for the first time.

83 horse-power with 8-cylinder flexibility, 127-inch wheel base and light weight give to the motorist an idea of the possibilities of this car.

A demonstration will show even greater performance than your expectations.

When you drive in traffic, never shifting a gear or never slipping the clutch, you will realize its unusual flexibility.

It is only when you try the hardest hills on high without straining the motor in the slightest degree that you can believe its wonderful hill-climbing ability.

The name "Sport Car" describes this new Standard "8". It is a sport car from its trim, supple lines to its snappy, eager performance.

The Standard "8" is built by the sixth largest industrial institution in the world—The Standard Steel Car Company of Pittsburgh—makers of world famous railroad rolling stock.
